BEHIND THE BARS.

Pursuit and Capture of George Baumgarten.

His Own Statement of the Murder as Told to the Gazette.

How a Strange Spell Came Upon Him, Causing Him to Kill the Innocent.

Appearance of the Prisoner.

George Baumgarten, the fiendish murderer of little "Sandy" White, the five year old son of Alexander White, of Fulton, was captured yesterday afternoon at Prairie du Sac, after being hotly pursued by officers who scattered in different directions so as to insure his capture. The news spread over the wires, and was received at the Gazette office about 6 o'clock last evening, and published in our Weekly, and quickly bulletined, and the news was read by scores of eager ones who quickly passed the tidings from tip to tip until the whole community was astir with the sensation. The chief interest has, since then, centered about the time when he would arrive here and

WHETHER HE WOULD BE MODERED.

Every arriving train was watched by scores of people, but although there was much talk as to what they thought ought to be done there was hardly any indications that anything would be done, but let law and order rule. The sheriff and officers wisely managed it so that the prisoner was safely escorted to this city and placed securely behind the bars before but few knew that the murderer was here.

THE PRISONER'S FLIGHT.

After the murder, was a hurried one, as already described in the account given yesterday. Pushing on to Stoughton and then northward, he reached Prairie du Sac, about 35 miles from Madison, yesterday afternoon without any stop being put to him, but on crossing the bridge there the tender asked him for toll, and Baumgarten handed him twenty cents. The bridge tender told him he guessed he wanted something more, and taking the horse by the bridle asked him his name. He said it was "George Gardner," but being satisfied that he had the right man, from the descriptions scattered over the country by the Sheriff, he held on to him and turned him over to Deputy Sheriff Gladden of Elberton who had just arrived and the prisoner was taken to Lodi. He offered no opposition and remained quiet in the hands of the officers. At 8:30 he was taken by rail to Madison arriving there at 10:30 o'clock last night. When he was turned over to Sheriff Comstock he was still in the depot with a number of officers, and a large crowd gathered about. He remained in jail there last night, and this morning was taken by by-streets to the depot, and brought to Fulton where he was met by team and brought to this city and placed in jail, arriving here at 12:30 o'clock.

THE PRISONER'S STATEMENT.

After being placed in his new quarters he was called upon by the city editor of the Gazette and questioned. The substance of his story made up from the answers to the questions put to him is as follows: "I am nearly seventeen years old. I was born in Jefferson. My father John Baumgarten, and my step-mother live near Fort Atkinson. I have worked out on different farms for the last three or four years. Three years ago I worked for John Lester near this city. The next summer I worked near Fort Atkinson for Jacob Kuriz. Last summer I worked for Nathaniel Rose. Winters I worked about here except one winter when I worked for a Mr. Gross. This summer I have worked for Mr. White, and there was no trouble with him or his folks, for I liked them all, and never had any fuss with any of them. The little boy

SANDY WAS A PET OF MINE, and he used to follow me all around. I had not thought of killing the little fellow, and when I went out to the barn that morning to harness the horses I did not think a thing about it. I went into the sheep stable to feed a colt there was there before harnessing the horses. The little fellow followed me in there. While I was there Sandy was playing around but he did not bother me, and did not do anything to make me mad, but

A STRANGE SPELL CAME ON ME, and I killed him while I was in that. I do not remember much about the hanging or the cutting. The most I know is that I hurt him badly in some way. I cannot remember what started me to take hold of him only that I felt that I could do almost anything. I felt dizzy and queer, I don't remember about cutting him while he was hanging, nor do I remember whether he yelled or not. I do not think I tied his feet but I tied his hands with pieces of cloth, but don't know what for.

THE KNIFE I USED was an old one, and was not sharpened by me. I cannot remember much about the matter except that I had treated him awfully, and don't know what made me do it. After it was all over I started for the barn and harnessed one of the horses thinking I would go to work. I had got one horse harnessed and was thinking all the time about what I had done, and my head getting clearer, I did not stop to harness the other horse, but went to the house. I changed my clothes, but did not change my shirt, and then I started back to the barn again. As I went past one end of the sheep stable, I was reminded that the little fellow was lying in there under the manger, and I began to realize what I had done, though I

DID NOT KNOW WHETHER HE WAS DEAD or not. My first thought was that the best thing I could do would be to go to Jansville and give myself up. Then I thought they might kill me if I did and I would not go there. I got onto the horse and started at a brisk gallop, and drove the first twenty miles pretty fast. My idea was that if I was caught near by the folks would mob me, and that I would go far enough away so that when I would give myself up I wouldn't get hurt. I did not stop to WASH THE BLOOD OFF MY HANDS until I had got a long way on the road. I did not get anything to eat from the time I started until I was captured, except a few apples. I got corn out of the fields to feed my horse, and I got a little sleep in a straw stack night before last. I did not stop to speak to anybody on the road except one man near Sun Prairie whom I questioned as to the road, and two boys who told me what time it was. I was glad I was arrested, only would have given myself up before and I was afraid that I had not got far enough away and that I might get hurt by the crowd. I am afraid now that they will mob me and I think that the officer ought to take care of me, and not let them hurt me. I am sorry for what I did, and I would not have done it but for the spell which came on me. I had another such a spell last fall when I was to work at Grose's but I did not do anything then, and it was not so bad a one. The folks say that I acted queer and joked me about not knowing anything and about being crazy, but that is all I remember about it. If the little boy had not been right by this time I wouldn't have killed him but would have got over the spell all right.

WHAT I WANT TO KNOW is what they are going to do with me. I want to go to Waupun right off if they are going to send me there, for I am afraid I will get hurt if I am here. They may break into jail and take me out, and I'd rather be in Waupun. I want to know as soon as I can what they are going to do.

HOW HE LOOKS. The prisoner is a smooth-faced ordinary looking boy, of sandy complexion, and rather dull eye. He stands about five feet four, and in garb and appearance has nothing to mark him above hundreds of others of like age. He has a little German accent in his talk, but can speak English with more accuracy than German. During the interview he sat upon the stool in the corner of his cell, his hat on, and his head bowed while in his hand he held a copy of the Gazette, which he kept fumbling uneasily, as though anxious to get a chance to complete the reading of the account of the murder, which he had commenced perusing when interrupted by the entrance of the visitor. He answered the queries clearly and intelligently except when the scene of blood itself was touched upon and then he evaded as much as possible by saying that he could not remember. He has nothing in his manner or men that would indicate insanity to an ordinary observer. In leaving his cell his last words to the caller were an urgent request "to see if they couldn't get it decided right off where they were going to take him." This evidently worries him greatly, and the fear of a mob seems ever present with him.

Much credit is due to Sheriff Baldwin of Madison, who in company with Sheriff Brown, of Jefferson, and Deputy Sheriff Gladden, of Elberton, got track of him after the murder had been reported for Prairie du Sac. Sheriff Baldwin had been to that place and posted the bridge tender and told him to hold the man, if he came there, until Gladden came. He then put off in another direction. Mr. Gladden is also deserving of great credit, for he left his business on being appointed a Deputy, and did not sleep or rest until he reached Prairie du Sac, and got hold of the prisoner. Constable McGinnis of that place demanded the custody of the prisoner, and insisted on this until they reached Madison, where Sheriff Comstock with a warrant asserted his rights. Sheriff Comstock has worked hard and well, and has about exhausted his strength in the chase. He showed wise judgment in getting the prisoner into jail without encountering any crowds, and Mr. Gladden forming the escort which brought him here from Madison. The prisoner to-day informed Mr. Gladden that he got the knife he used, out of the cutting room where tobacco was trimmed, and has told him where he put it. It will probably be recovered to-morrow. He also informed Mr. Gladden that he hung the boy first and then cut him. It is evident that he remembers much more of the event than he cares now to disclose.

BRIEFLETS.

—Prayers at the churches to-night.
—Are Sutherland is able to be around again.
—Marshal Russell spent yesterday at Elkhorn.
—One of Jansville's young ladies yesterday was distributing her "P. P. C." cards.
—A number of our society folk will go to the Jansville Grange dance to-morrow night.
—Uncle Tom's Cabin didn't open up last evening, and the company have not been heard from.
—Night-watchman Herrick run in one drunken fellow last night. Otherwise the hours passed quietly.
—Mr. Loren Finch of La Prairie showed us yesterday some chestnut burrs gathered from one of the trees on his farm. There were ten burrs on one stem, and one of the burrs held eight nuts. The chestnuts are of his own raising he having planted the seed thirty years ago.

FITCHED FROM THE WAGON.

Last evening as Mr. Z. Gould and Mr. Hinds were driving in the First ward near George Hied's residence, they met a team drawing what they thought was a load of sugar-cane. As they were interested in that business and wanted to make sure it was cane they attempted to drive up closer to the wagon, but the horse shied and jumped and soon tipped over the buggy throwing Mr. Gould out with great force. Mr. Hinds hung on until he was also pitched out, but fortunately was not injured. Mr. Gould when picked up, was insensible. He was taken to his home and Dr. Sutherland was called in to attend to his injuries. He was found to have struck on the back part of his head and shoulder. There were some severe bruises and a probable fracture of the clavicle, which will lay him up for some time but which will not result seriously.

SOCIAL PARTY.

A social party will be given by Jansville Grange, No. 101, at Grange Hall, town of Jansville, Friday evening, September 26, at which five pieces of Harry Anderson's Band will furnish the music. Dancing tickets 75 cents—supper 50 cents. All who attend will be sure of an enjoyable evening, as the following list of managers will omit nothing for the comfort and pleasure of the occasion: G. H. Barker, Jansville; John Thayer, Jansville; Will Emerson, City; George F. McGinnis, Elberton; Hiram Proctor, La Prairie.

THE COST OF A BORE.

Another proposition is now presented to the city, which will prove of interest to those who have been agitating the water-works question. It is from W. E. Swan, of Mason City, Iowa, who says: "I will bore a well 1,000 feet deep and guarantee a flow for $3.50 per foot, the location not to be any higher than Main street or the ground upon which the Harris works are located, or I will bore for $2.50 per foot if the city will take all the chances of getting a flow. It would be well worth while to try the experiment, for I believe there can be an immense flow got at Jansville."

HOW MONEY IS LOST.

The other day a gentleman received at the money order department, a registered letter, and stepping out to the front part of the postoffice, opened it. The writer of the letter said there was $5 inclosed, but the receiver not finding the money, hurried back to the postmaster and entered his complaint. The man was informed that possibly the writer had forgotten to put the money in it, and after some urging concluded to write to the party sending the letter. Later in the day Mr. Merrill found a $5 bill on the floor of the postoffice, and handed it in at the window to be called for. In a few days the party sending the registered letter sent word that the money had surely been put in the letter, and was certain that it must have been taken out on the road. The money picked up by Mr. Merrill was found on the floor just where the receiver of the letter said he opened it, and the amount corresponding. It was evident that he had dropped it, and the bill was therefore given him. This instance is given as it shows how often the postoffice department is liable to be blamed for carelessness on the part of others. Had the money fallen into the hands of some dishonest person it would have been difficult to convince the writer of the letter or the receiver that the money was not taken by some dishonest employee of the postoffice department.

FIFTH WARD AGAIN.

As there seems to be a wrong idea conveyed to the public through Aid Fitzgibbon's report to the investigating committee, I feel in duty bound to make the facts known as they exist. As it has already been stated the amount expended by him in 1878, was $1,336.43. Of that amount he paid from Ald. Hemming's fund for 1877, $337. From his own fund for 1878, $800, being the amount raised. Leaving a balance for that year of $439.43 to be paid from this year's fund. As he stated in his report it is now all paid. That is correct, but he forgot to say it only left $917.55 ward fund for the year 1879. One reason for this explanation is, persons are wanting to know what I have done with $800. They can now read and judge for themselves.

Yours Respectfully,
J. H. BURNS.
